Guardian Capital Announces Additional Ex-Dividend Information for November 2023 Distributions for Certain Guardian Capital ETFs

TORONTO, November 27, 2023 – Guardian Capital LP today announced that the Toronto Stock Exchange (“TSX”) is requiring it to amend the ex-dividend date for the November 2023 cash distributions for the Guardian Capital ETFs (as defined below) due to an administrative error in making a filing under the TSX rules. All other dates and information, including the applicable record date, relating to the November 2023 cash distributions for the Guardian Capital ETFs, previously communicated in Guardian Capital LP’s November 16, 2023 press release, remain unchanged. The amended ex-dividend date required by the TSX is November 27, 2023. Trading and capital activity with respect to the Guardian Capital ETFs on the previously announced ex-dividend dates was not impacted by this administrative error, and all purchases and sales reflected prices that were net of any dividend amounts. Furthermore, there is no impact to the trading prices of the Guardian Capital ETFs on November 27th or going forward. The amended ex-dividend date is applicable to the ETF series of Guardian Directed Equity Path Portfolio (TSX: GDEP, GDEP.B), Guardian Directed Premium Yield Portfolio (TSX: GDPY, GDPY.B), GuardPath™ Managed Decumulation 2042 Fund (TSX: GPMD), Guardian Ultra-Short Canadian T-Bill Fund (TSX: GCTB) and Guardian Ultra-Short U.S. T-Bill Fund (TSX: GUTB.U) (collectively, the “Guardian Capital ETFs”).
